Career history: Following a career in television production, I began making pots in 1992. After graduating I set up in a shared studio in Battersea and began to make and sell work at open studios and craft fairs. I was a member of London Potters. In 2000 I moved to Farnham and for two years had a studio at Farnham Pottery. My studio is now in Kingsley, Hampshire.

ARTIST'S STATEMENT:

I make vessels on the wheel, using white earthenware clay. My work is partly inspired by the still-life paintings of Giorgio Morandi; I strive for the simplicity and quiet conveyed by his pictures of groups of bottles and other vessels. I want my pots to have the same sense of being in family groups, related but non-identical. I strive for balance and harmony of form and colour. I formulated a smooth, semi-matt earthenware glaze while I was at college, and I use this as a base to which I add oxides and stains to obtain a spectrum of colours both subtle and vivid, the inspiration for which comes from nature: flowers, fruit, the landscape. As Morandi said, "What interests me most is expressing what is in nature, in the visible world".
